Apps for Mobile Devices

In order to drive efficiencies in the office and in the field, we are finding that many customers are starting to use their mobile devices more effectively to help them manage their resources and time to be more productive. Here are three helpful mobile apps to help increase your profits this year:

Download the free app from The Weather Network that keeps you up to date with current and future weather events that could impact planning for your crews. You can track up to ten different locations so that your information is only a touch away. You can also receive severe weather notifications wherever you are, to help you take cover before dangerous weather rolls in.

Try the free version of the TripLog that uses your smartphone's GPS to track mileage. It will automatically track all of your trips after you turn on the GPS. Data is backed up daily and can be used to calculate vehicle fuel efficiency. This is the most popular GPS app with over 300,000 downloads and an auto-start feature is also available. This application also has the ability to capture printed receipts with your camera and easily store to the cloud.

Simplify your life by using Evernote to keep track of information, stay organized and save your ideas. This helpful app allows you to write to-do lists, take notes, capture photos from work sites and even record voice messages. All of this information can be shared across any your devices (from your smartphone, to a tablet to your PC or home computer) and stores information that can be searched at a later date.

All of us at CP&PS wish you the very best in 2014 and encourage you to explore these apps over the next month. If you have some favourite apps, we would appreciate you letting us know.

Note: The apps discussed in this circular have been reviewed and recommended by other professionals and we are sharing their success with you. We have not verified these at Canpipe. Consult with your mobile device expert for help in selecting and installing apps.

We look forward to your business and partnering with you to help drive your growth in 2014.

Sincerely,

Robert Martini
